TEAR GAS BY MEGA D

Every time we loose a hero like Lucky Dube, it calls for a daring, soul-baring mental exercise. We must see to it, that there is always all the freedoms that God bestowed on humanity from the first day of his creation. Whatever reason Lucky Dube died for, let's put good use to the work he leaves us.

So this goes to our rulers on this sorrowful day for the whole of Africa; give the people a chance to express themselves. Tear gas akendeere!!!!!!!

Who ever killed Lucky Dube, he must know that he made the whole African continent bleed. He must be in the deepest remorse, if he's human. Here on earth, there is no forgiveness for him, because we don't have that power and it's not our responsibility to forgive him. If he did it for money, let him know, he'll be feeding his family the blood of a whole continent. He better prepare a good case on the judgement day. God Bless Africa.

I'd never seen this song before Kaliba mentioned it here. I like the wild look in this guy Mega D's wide open eyes in this song. I bet that was before the tear gas got into them!
