Land; Museveni is on the loose

LAND BILL : Beti Kanya

Buganda's land hullabaloo is not an isolated case but an expression of mistrust of President Museveni, culminating out of their experiences during the 27-year relationship. Most people opposed to the Land Act Amendment Bill do not know a word of it. All they have is gut-feeling that Museveni's motives are suspect, because they know that he is a tribalist who cannot be trusted.

When Museveni led Baganda to the bush to fight, they submitted to him, trusting that he was the Messiah sent to deliver them from president Obote.

Baganda reminisce with bitterness the war during which they fought with, loved, trusted, fed, hid and died for Museveni. They look back about 23 years ago since the war ended, during which they continued to support him as they patiently waited for him to recognise their contribution and pay back. The first thing Museveni did when he got to power was to relocate 30,000 pastoralists from Luweero to Nyabushozi where he built for them a first class school, Kanyaryeru School, staffed with carefully selected teachers, where the diet includes eggs, bread and milk, paid for by the State.

Next, he grabbed land from owners in the infamous "ranch restructuring scheme" and resettled only his kith on it. Baganda hear of the 20-year-old State House scholarship scheme whose beneficiaries list is a State secret, although we all know that it is heavily dominated by kith, kin and cronies. They watch as key State institutions are staffed with executives belonging to the same ethnic group.

Baganda were prepared to live with the old adage that charity begins at home (never mind that this "beginning" has lasted 23 years and shows no sign of moving beyond home).

Yet President Museveni has not only hinted on ominous plans for Buganda but has been provocative. During the re-instatement of the Kabaka, Museveni said that Obote was foolish to have abolished kingdoms using the gun when there are many smarter ways he could have used.

Immediately after the promulgation of the 1995 Constitution, he expressed dissatisfaction with the land ownership provisions, making specific reference to the Mailo land, found only in Buganda.

In 1997, he wrote to Prime Minister Cosmas Adyebo, instructing him to find land in Kampala for investors and that if the land tenure system was a problem, they "should urgently consider amending the constitution...". Ten years down the line, he has not found a credible investor. Clearly, from the onset of his rule, Museveni has been gunning for Buganda land.

There were never "landless" people in Buganda since everybody owned land either as a title or Kibanja holder, and the Kibanja holder was always able to legally bequeath, buy, sell or use his/her piece for any purpose of his/her choice, including building houses, burying their dead and using it as security in many instances.

But the 1998 Land Act created a class of land owners never known in Buganda before – the bona fide occupants- whose claim on land was based on the fact that he/she had settled on it for over 12 years without the consent of the titleholder, no matter how they came to settle on the land.

In October 2004, in a speech supporting President Mugabe, Museveni said “..... I don't agree with those who condemn President Mugabe.....in Uganda we have the same problem of land created by the British.....” - clearly in reference to the land tenure system in Buganda.

Pray, given that everybody indigenous in Buganda had land, and given that there is a free and dynamic land market, what problem did the British colonialists cause that Museveni wishes to address not in Ankole, but in Buganda?

Baganda are annoyed by the double standards. When Banyoro wanted Baganda and Bakiga off their land, a fund was created to facilitate their wish.

When the Acholi say hands-off Acholi land, Museveni backs off, when the Bagungu order Balaalo out of Buliisa, government complies.

But when Baganda express an opinion, Museveni warns them against tribalism, accuses them of disrespect, writes a rude, threatening letter to the Kabaka while he is donating chunks of Buganda's 9,000 sq mls, whose ownership and location, I hasten to add, are not contentious, to dubious investors.

Baganda are right to be suspicious of Museveni because he cannot be trusted. They are determined to oppose him to the last Muganda and they welcome comrades in this struggle, because today it is Buganda, tomorrow it will be your land, Museveni is on the loose!

Shouldn't any landowner enjoy the right to exclude trespassers or squatters from his or her land?

How does this proposed reform balance the rights of legitimate landowners against the cost of expelling present and future trespassers or squatters.

Realistically landownership is not a basic right especially in a lauded free-market economy like Uganda. This is only another grab by those who graze and roam freely on the communal lands whence they come from yet prefer to comfortably squat and grab Buganda land.

This is a master piece of a document from Betty Kamyia showing the real thief Museveni and his mischief.

M7 stay warned war will ensue if you try to grab BUGANDA land.

We have no option but to resist your Tutsi Domination in BUGANDA. Buganda will throw out your Balaalo back to Rwanda including yourself!

I am sorry, but the saying give ceaser what belong to ceaser, is a myth. The world is about survival for the fittest, the issue of land will never be solved, wards can shall be exchanged. Because Buganda is an unfortunate given its strategic location, this is by nature always if you are beautiful men will eye you and you may end up tying several notes. History will tell. My contribution is not back by historical facts but you may take time and research. Because some tribes are zeroing, scattered because other groups are struggling to share what belong to them

I agree with almost everything this lady says, but I have a few points of information here. It might be true that most people opposed to the land act don't know much about it, but it's not a mere gut-feeling they are working with. People have lived under the rule of M7 for twenty something years, and are quite familiar with his ways. Many people have suffered in the past more than ten years with ruthless outlaws backed by the system who've been claiming to have bought their lands and chasing them off it. Mostly targeted have been orphans, the sick, the old, the widows, expatriates and others, many of whom have even been locked up in prisons, their lives threatened for fighting for their stolen rights. With that, you don't need to know any new drafts. As for being a tribalist, I don't think M7 ever hid it, his Mustard Seed is all about that from first page to end. But then again, people from Ankole and Bukiga are the most tribalists in the country.

Another point, M7 never LED THE BAGANDA TO the bush. They met there and joined forces. The Baganda didn't submit to him, they trusted him, but as a fellow human being who they thought cared like they did for the well being of our country.

AND NEVER DID ANY ONE THINK OF HIM AS A MESSIAH SENT TO DELIVER THEM FROM ANYONE OR ANYWHERE. The Messiah is one, and there will be no other.

More over, our fallen heroes who fought by his side, were freedom fighters. They definately did not die for him!!!! But for freedom, which is a Godly cause. M7 betrayed them and this cause.

A warning to prominent Ugandans

Last updated : 18 Jan 2008, Kampala

A late Happy New Year to fellow Ugandans. We begin this year on a serious note of warning to our fellow Ugandans to wake up to a newly discovered danger.

In a bid to keep their power and protect their stolen wealth, this man called Yoweri Museveni together with his so called wife Janet (whom he refuses to marry officially for known reasons) have/are planning to carry out wide ranging assassinations of known political opponents, friends, family members, NRM members who have started having second thoughts, senior army Officers, Buganda land activists, MPs, and believe it or not, the Kabaka himself!

The background to this grave statement: Over the recent holiday season, you may have noticed that M7 and his wife (please call them the most ruthless assassins Uganda have ever known and will ever know) have spent their Christmas holidays in Rwakitura. What we want to tell you is that it was not all fun and games down in Rwakitura.

If a doctor comes to see you in his official capacity, and spends so much time with you, common sense tells us there is a health problem somewhere. So if we tell you that the Musevenis spent a lot of time huddled together in long private talks with known assassins, that can only tell you one thing. There is no better indication that these people are planning more murders, spilling more blood of Ugandans and carry out political eliminations.

Who are these people we are calling assassins? Observers familiar with Rwakitura will say Radio Katwe is telling lies because surely one could see only the usual villagers coming to greet the big man and his family. I must admit, even some of us who have been with Museveni for many, many years have been fooled all along. The guy does his dirty work in a very smart way that it is hard to detect. But once you discover the trick it is so simple. Among the so called "villagers" who come to see them pretending that they are needy peasants looking for handouts from the God fearing family, are professional hit men (assasins) coming for instructions and money. If one is not alert, even most of our simple PGB boys have not opened their eyes to realise what is happening under their noses.

Let us rewind a bit. We all remember that the late Brigadier Mayombo was poisoned last year after complaining directly to Museveni that his half brother Salim Saleh and son Muhoozi Kaneirugaba were making his work very difficult, and were known to be stealing more than 40% of the funds budgeted for Defence and the Army, as opposed to the 10% agreed amount reserved for the first family (which percentage is also illegal and theft, but as you know greed knows no bounds). The British Team under DFID that was carrying out the Defence review had somehow tolerated the 10% for some time now, but this large scale naked theft made them to start to raising objections as to how a country can allow money budgeted for the poor soldiers be stolen directly and very openly by the First Family.

When Mayombo was poisoned, he had survived the first doze when he was taken to Kampala International Hospital and would have probably lived to tell the story. When Museveni was informed that Mayombo would recover, he ordered that he should be transferred to Nairobi Aga Khan hospital immediately for "further treatment" despite opposition from Mayombo's family who objected that he was too weak to be flown. (When was the last time you saw a patient under the circumstances of Mayombo taken from a hospital ICU on a long journey? Can any doctor or credible, qualified medical professional come forward and be on record that he is the one who recommended such a trip?).

During the flight to Nairobi in the Presidential Jet, a person came posing as "Dr. James Makumbi", ready to administer a more deadly dose of poison to poor Mayombo as he was flown to Nairobi! No wonder the family kept asking themselves how Mayombo who had told relatives that he was feeling better in a supposedly inferior hospital in Kampala, was now worse off at one of the best hospitals in Africa upon arrival in Nairobi! Well, you now have the answer.

One may now ask: who is this so called "Dr. Makumbi" and how has he been found out? Our sources in Museveni's "Republican Guard", the Presidential Guard Brigade (PGB) who were on the scene on the night Mayombo was flown out managed to positively identify beyond doubt this same "Dr. Makumbi", who now came posing as a poor villager visiting the first family to get some crumbs in Rwakitura (but the real reason is to get further instructions and money from Museveni and wife).

As God would love his people and sometimes allows miracles to happen, our sources who were in Entebbe on that fateful night Mayombo's fate was sealed also happened to be in Rwakitura at the very time this "doctor", now transformed into a poor "villager" wearing rags, came visiting last month when the first family were taking their holiday!! That is when their eyes were opened very, very wide.

This particular person posing as a villager has unique features and when our sources realized as having seen this particular "villager" posing as the "Doctor" who escorted Mayombo to Nairobi, everything became clear that once again, here was an assassin posing as a villager coming for instructions to kill fellow Ugandans. (We have taken steps to ensure that our PGB sources are safe. They should never mention this to anybody else lest they are found out and killed immediately. Please dear PGB patriots, remember that this evil regime has informers everywhere. Apart from high offices, even waiters, street sweepers, cleaners in buildings and parking attendants etc, so never talk carelessly about this matter).

However, of importance and why I am coming out, is to warn fellow Ugandans who may have any disagreement in public or private with Museveni and his wife to take extra, extra care because according to the guard, this particular villager stayed for more than two weeks meeting separately in deep privacy with Museveni and his wife, and their talks appeared more serious. We hope this message will get to people like Jim Muhwezi, the Kabaka, Gilbert Bukenya, prominent Baganda land activists, writers, academics etc and those who are known to be anti-Museveni and do not hide it.

We are not being alarmist or saying that you should now stop opposing the man and exposing his crudeness, lies and theft. In fact it is better and important to show more boldness. The reality is that despite outward strength, fierceness and being a real danger, evil regimes are inwardly rotten, weak and ready to collapse dramatically any time.

The message is simply that in any case, it is better to be alarmed than to take things casual and get harmed. You are not dealing with simple people. These ones have long experience going back 30 years and more, they have perfected technics and can be very sophisticated killers. So please, beware of guards/security, emissaries or messengers sent to you by the State, or anybody you are not sure of. You people who are physically close to and genuinely love the Kabaka and other prominent people, this is the time to be on the highest alert. We know you already are, but we are confirming to you that the danger is now real and not just hypothetical.

Our PGB sources said that this particular man when you come closer to him does not show any signs of being a poor man apart from the dirty clothes and rags he wears to fool the PGB guards and other observers. Museveni and wife requested him to remain behind when the other villages (genuine and fake) were asked to leave after the visit. He may be working alone, but he may also be the leader of a unit of deadly assassins.

We shall keep you updated and we shall try to locate this particular man and his true identity. As no cameras are allowed near Museveni, one has to be very careful. But one day God will give us luck and we show the whole world the hands that Museveni uses to murder people.

Fellow Ugandans, my assesment is that we may see lots of mysterious killings this year. As has been his trademark for 30 years, where there is Museveni, there is blood.

Quoting from the above article;

...and those who are known to be anti-Museveni and do not hide it.

I don't really think there are people who are anti-Museveni. Museveni is not a standard or a criteria for people to collect up against. This is a misconception that can result into lots of problems, like someone thinking he/she's not liked as a human being. For the sake of clarity, I would like to state here, that what balanced people have problems with, and that they have a God given right to, is others' behaviour when not according to the Universal rules of symbiosis. So I think the correct phrase here is not anti-Museveni, but rather anti-ways of Museveni.

Museveni softens stand on Land Bill

MERCY NALUGO YASIIN MUGERWA & ROBERT MWANJE

KAMPALA

PRESIDENT Yoweri Museveni has finally softened his hard-line stance on the controversial amendments to the 1998 Land Act, agreeing to protests that the Bill lacks clarity and has glaring holes which need to be plugged.

In an eight hour-long meeting with members of Parliament who represent Buganda constituencies at the weekend, Mr Museveni conceded that the Land (Amendment) Bill 2007 has loopholes.

Uganda: Lt. Col. Kamyá's Service to Nation Commendable

New Vision (Kampala)

OPINION

18 February 2008

Posted to the web 19 February 2008

Beti Kamyá

Kampala

I have been accused before court of promoting war against the person of the President, promoting sectarianism, sedition and inciting violence - all because the 'State', with all its machinery, did not comprehend my article in Daily Monitor, January 28, titled: "Where is Museveni's Heart?"

These charges being subjudice, I will only address only the issue of my late father, Lt. Col. George Kamyá, about whom President Yoweri Museveni made six disdainful references in an article published in Sunday Vision, February 10.

The President insinuated that for being my father's daughter, I should hide my face in shame, because my father was an officer in Uganda Army during Idi Amin's regime.

My father's photograph hangs in Bishop Balagadde's office, Namirembe Diocese, as one of the Cathedral's treasured memorials, while his name is inscribed among 20 worthy people on the foundation stone of the new Namirembe Cathedral Synod Hall. This not to mention in numerous churches and schools where they valued his voluntary service.

Just like his grandfather's name, Andereya Kamyá, is lovingly inscribed on the memorial stone at Ruharo Cathedral, Mbarara, as the first African catechist in Ankore Kingdom. His great-grandfather, Kiddu, son of Balimuttajjo and grandson of Busungu, is sang as one of the great warriors of his time, during the Bunyoro-Buganda wars - with such inspiring pedigree, all buried in Kooki, where I often go to pay homage.

Do I have to hide my face in shame? My father did not only build churches and schools but he was a freedom fighter as well. As an accountant working in the East African Railways and Harbours in Nakuru, Kenya in the late 1950s, along with Tom Mboya and others, he founded the General African Workers' Union, now Kenya Workers' Union and was its first chairman, to the chagrin of his European bosses.

Having integrated so well in the Kenya community and marrying a Kikuyu lady, my mother, his stars in independent Kenya were soaring, as the colonialists left and the few professional Africans took over their lucrative farms, houses and jobs.

But for the love of home, ignoring my mother's pleas to remain in Kenya and take advantage of the new opportunities, my father resolutely left it all behind so that his young family could grow up in Uganda, where he joined the Uganda Army as an accountant cadet officer in 1964.

He rose through the ranks of Second and First Lieutenant, Captain, Major, Lt Col, and there was never a finer officer. His friends and colleagues in the army used to say of him in Kiswahili: Uyu Mzungu kabisa, tena Mzungu ile British (this man is not just an ordinary European, but a British European).

Every cloud has a silver lining and the President's reference to my father and the sins of Idi Amin in reply to my article, vindicates me for warning that the sins of a bad leader will be visited on people even remotely connected to them and that in the spirit of self preservation, they would be well advised to restrain them.

For the 'crime' of being 'the daughter of Amin's officer', President Museveni reminds me that were it not for his magnanimity, I would not be sleeping in my bed, in other words, Amin's sins would be visited on me because of my father's job as army officer. That is the story of Africa and the only way to prevent it is to create a just society and equitable distribution of national resources.

This is what Capt. Mike Mukula, the NRM vice-chairman, Andrew Mwenda in The Independent, Mzee Bidandi Ssali, the Equal Opportunities Act, the parliamentary select committee to on allegations of regional imbalance in police recruitment, the demand by the parliamentary committee on government assurances for Uganda Revenue Authority, staff list, and my article are about.
