I once read a comment on the Youtube, written by someone who'd seen him misbehave after a concert in Toronto. Most Africans who have had some artistic dreams know how difficult it is to achieve recognition. I wouldn't like to make Chameleon feel bad or that the very people who raised him to the top, are pulling him down now. So this is not addressed only to him, but to all those new African Artists. You've got to understand that, our culture is different from the Western culture. To us, not all publicity is good publicity. We are still hooked up on the good old proper behaviour. Show the world who we are, and how great we can be.

Maybe he forgets that his fans are his employers? And if you are rude to your employer, at least as far as we are acquainted with out here, you better be ready to get fired!!! But I know he's worked hard, and hope he comes around.

I tend to snub concerts organised by Ugandans. Not because they are not full talent, but because half the time, they are poorly organised. Some organisers tend to want to milk all they can out of the shows at the expense of a decent service. Such shows are normally organised in alley ways or sometimes in cold stinky places.

What is going to keep putting me away from them concerts is stories like these. I mean I love Chameleone. He's given us all those great hits and I think he is a great talent.

But maybe it's best to love him from a distance. Or maybe someone go give him an education if you can stand his ego.

Alinga kapere eyalinnya omuti n'atuula ku tabbi ate n'atandika okulitema nga talina magezi galaba nti bw'analitema neligwa naye agya kugwiirako!

By any event Chamileon had no right to overstep his diginity and react towards his funs. There is a saying that "the customer is always right" so if Chamileon was provoked by the fun he would have renounced his reaction and respect him self based on his status and his age. The reason why i dont defend him is that this is not the first time i have heard this guy fighting,or being disrespectful towards his audience! At one point i read in monitor when he was refused to enter in Nakivubo stadiim and he resorted to hit the gate with his car! What would he do if he got arrested and put in Luzira for five years? I understand his education background is low but he can borrow his interectual knowledge to solve such simple issues and overcome "BIG/Tupac" incident.

Omuyimbi yena nze manyi aba musomesa, olwensoga nti babukozesa nga a methodology of communicating, ela ngatufunye ebyokuyiga bingi ngatuyita munyimba ezazbayimbi abenjawulo.Nebatutumuka olwokuyiba kwabwe.

Katti bwebatandika okweyisa obubi kubantu abelekeleza kebayina nebyebayina okola nebungana ate gwe gwebaze okulaba newefula owekitalo tekilaga bugunjufu.

So chameleon has long way to go,he wont achive the rest when he is loosing popularity. :(

Doesn't Mr. Chameleon get any satisfaction from what he has achieved so far? What does he get so violent for? Well, perhaps he should be left to carry on with his fighting, he might get what he's looking for.

Jose Chameleon yeeee! It's a very nice thing that you came out to straighten things out with your fans. I would like to tell you something about us who live permanently out here, stress is our middle name. So we know what you go through. But if we all start being rude and violent to each other, what is going to become of us? I know people will try to make others blame you for stuff, but then you know it too, try not to let them win!!! You'll never know how much we've been holding onto you guys back home, through out the years. Sometimes we might come on too strong maybe, bear with us missing home and all you come representing. Please, don't move the goal posts on us!! Don't get me wrong, I don't mean to dispirit you, we love that warrior attitude of yours, just don't waste it on trivialities. Nice thing you apologized to Boston. Now I feel love in the air. Keep on doing what you are doing and remember, you have already marked our memories. So we love you right back!
